Description:

In times of COVID-19, many people have questions about their religious freedom rights versus government intervention. Some communities are grappling with concerns about the separation of church and state. This webinar is a dialogue for people like you to understand the difficult decisions houses of worship face during stay-at-home mandates and what that means for religious freedom.

This webinar is organized by the Religious Freedom Center of the Freedom Forum Institute, and it features Charles Watson Jr., BJC's director of education; Maggie Garrett, vice president for public policy at Americans United for Separation of Church and State; Richard Foltin, senior scholar at the Religious Freedom Center and former director of national and legislative affairs, American Jewish Committee (AJC); Mandisa Thomas, president and founder of Black Nonbelievers; and Lata Nott, Freedom Forum fellow and First Amendment expert (moderator).
